Continuing Education Series

Engaging People with Dementia in Non-Memory Care Settings

Juliet Holt Klinger, MA, Senior Director Dementia Care

This session will highlight the importance of engagement in the well-being of people living with dementia. We will review the definition of engagement, how best to engage a person with mid-late stage dementia in a non-memory care setting and the various benefits of engagement for the person living with dementia that can be applied in all care environments.

Following this presentation the participant will be able to:

- Define engagement for people living with dementia
- Learn the engagement strategies of people living with dementia
- Understand the benefits of engagement on symptom management for mid-late stage dementia
- Review common and state of the art tools for engagement of people living with dementia
