MARTIE MOORE, MAOM, RN, CPHQ

Healthcare professionals are increasingly confronted with ethically complex and emotionally charged decisions in the care management of older adults. This educational session equips participants with the tools and insights needed to navigate ethical challenges with clarity, courage and compassion. Through real-life scenarios, attendees will deepen their understanding of ethical principles, learn to apply decision-making models with confidence, and strengthen their ability to advocate for what's right — even in the grayest of situations. Following this presentation, the participant will be able to:

1. Examine foundational ethical principles and their application in today's complex healthcare landscape.
2. Apply structured ethical decision-making frameworks to real-world case management dilemmas.
3. Identify signs of ethical or moral distress and implement effective advocacy strategies within interdisciplinary teams.
